Dear [redacted]

25X1

I regret very much that my present plan for my trip to the Pacific will not permit me to visit Portland, but I do not feel that such a visit is necessary.

Attached hereto you will find my tentative schedule. You will note that I will return to Reseda from the Pacific on 19 February. I will make the necessary arrangements prior to my departure to have you ordered from Portland to Reseda and return in order that you may meet with me at Reseda and work out the final plans for the physical movement of your station and staff from Portland to Reseda.

If we are able to start the movement from Portland on or about March 1, it would appear to me that your presence on the West Coast during this period of transition would be very necessary. It is my present plan to depart for England and the Mediterranean sometime during March. It appears that the period between my return from the Pacific and departure for England and the Mediterranean would not be very convenient time for you to leave the West Coast, and, therefore, it probably will be necessary for you to postpone your trip to Washington for orientation until April, or possibly later.

Please try to anticipate all of the problems involved in the move South, and be prepared to present any of those which you have been unable to settle to me at Reseda when I meet you there on or about 19 February 1948.

Sincerely,

This document part of classified integrated file. NAME CHECK required prior to individual classification action.
